Missing Girl Found With Tongman

AMARAL ATTACKS MERGER

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—First, a word about the unreasonable "Young Bill" Curley. He is the editor of the Chicago American, born on the island of Manhattan, he is growing up with Chicago. It is well known that with one possible exception, he is the ablest evening newspaper editor in America. His very unreasonableness proves his ability.

President Coolidge has spent this day in Chicago, working hard. Newspapers, laying out his day, inserted numerous items such as "Drake Hotel, 9 to 12, resting." And "Stockyards Inn, 5 to 6—resting."

Being President isn't all beer and skittles. In fact, in Mr. Coolidge's case, there is no beer, and there are no skittles. He worked hard from his arrival at 9:15 in the morning to 9:45 at night, when he left for Washington with twenty odd photographers shooting off flashes in his face, incidentally not causing him to change his expression.

TIME WILL locate President Coolidge's place in history. He is one of our few this President. Excepting Woodrow Wilson, he is the only this President we have had for a long while.

CHICAGO APPROVES his coming here on an ordinary train in an ordinary Pullman, no special car, although government appropriation would have paid for a special car.

MILTON FOLKS HAVE MAIL BOXES, BUT POSTMAN DOESN'T CALL

WALK ONE MILE TO OFFICE

Residents Half a Block Away Get 2 Deliveries; Santa at Disadvantage

Why are nearly 100 citizens of Milton, one of the wealthiest suburbs of Boston, deprived of mail deliveries?

This question is agitating residents of the town, particularly the unfortunate victims of the State's postal snafu, who are forced to go to the postoffice for their letters.

Not only are tenants and house-owners complaining, but officials of the town are also up in arms to the fact that the reputation of the community is being injured.

Beane road, Ridge road, Fairfax road and Virginia street comprise the section recently opened up, which is cut off from mail deliveries. Again and again angry residents have complained, but each time have been put off with vague promises. Now they demand action.

SERVICE PROMISED.

A lonely mother complains that she wants letters from her daughter in college. A landlady fears that she will be unable to secure tenants in a district where there are no mail deliveries. A contractor is losing business because his orders are delayed.

When the section was opened up last June, service was promised by the first of October. Now, while it is coming on and the inconvenience of taking a two-mile trip to the postoffice is increased. As there is no likelihood of service before Christmas, the residents will probably have to play Santa Claus and bring their own packages from the general delivery.

Particularly annoying to many of the residents is the fact that they are only half a block from the streets that are getting two deliveries a day. But while a woman on the corner has on two-ounce gaiters and dropped into her mail box, the lady next door has to walk a mile and back to get a two-ounce Christmas box. That Christmas is meeting the children.

Mrs. N. L. Fletcher of No. 12 Vine street complains that she bought her house and moved in without knowing that there were no mail deliveries. For four days she waited for mail. Then she went to the postoffice to make inquiry and found an awful waiting. Mrs. Fletcher has a two-family house. Her present tenant moved in without realizing conditions. Mrs. Fletcher fears that it will be more difficult to get another.

SEEK SAME BENEFITS.

Mrs. A. Smith is an elderly woman who lives alone at No. 14 Ridge road. She must go without her mail or take a daily walk of nearly two miles.

Mrs. J. LaBonde bought property and built a house on Brandon road with the understanding that there would be mail service after October 1. Mr. LaBonde is away a great deal on business and she is obliged to leave her children alone to get the mail. During the summer these children were told that the delay in their service was due to their living on unaccepted streets. When they found that other unaccepted streets got service they were told that they would get mail as soon as there were street lights. Their answer is that they don't expect to get mail deliveries after dark. Certain residents feel that the position is simply concentrating on the size of its staff.

Robinson... to Return to Charity

London, Dec. 5.—The Christmas tree needed this year would be grown on 1,000 acres, the Department of Agriculture believes and therefore it is not greatly concerned over the effect the cutting might have on the country's forests.

The figure is insignificant, the Department feels, when it is considered that 1,000,000 acres were laid bare by fires during the year.

It is estimated that between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 trees will be felled this month for the Yuletide.

COOLIDGE, WORN AND TIRED, IN NEED OF REST

Takes Slow Train From Chicago; Due in Capital at 8 Tonight

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 5.—Wood and tired from thirteen months' hours in Chicago President Coolidge was crawling back to Washington today about a train that does not offer the speed advantages of that upon which he made the outward trip.

By the time the presidential party reaches the capital at 8 p. m., 23 hours will have elapsed since the departure from Chicago, as against an 11-hour trip westward.

Mr. Coolidge, however, needs the rest. During the short time he spent in Chicago he provided in two speeches, a luncheon and a dinner, an inspection of the International League show and a series of interviews with western industrial and political leaders.

The president of traveling should an ordinary passenger train is being followed on the return trip.

OLD FIRE HORSE HAULED OUT OF HARBOR

"Nigger" Now Drawing Fish Wagon; Had Walked Off End of Pier

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 5.—Wood and tired from thirteen months' hours in Chicago President Coolidge was crawling back to Washington today about a train that does not offer the speed advantages of that upon which he made the outward trip.

The president of traveling should an ordinary passenger train is being followed on the return trip.

The fire horse, "Nigger," who has been a fixture of the Boston Fire Department since his life to his former pole, the wooden pier, "Nigger," who now hauls a fish wagon, fell into the harbor at Fish pier and the crew of Ladder 18 and a swimming crew from headquarters were summoned to haul him out.

The fireman, under the direction of Deputy Chief Albert J. Canfield and Lieutenant Fred Doherty, worked nearly an hour, rigging slings under the animal to hoist him back to land.

It was not until the horse was hoisted again that the rescuers discovered he, "Nigger," the animal was wrapped in blankets and carried in the horse ambulance to the Longwood Hospital, where he is recovering from his fall.

DEGENERATE BRUTES AND SPEEDY AUTOS

By HAL COFFMAN

EVERYDAY IN THE NEWS THERE IS STORY OF YOUNG GIRLS BEING BEATEN AND CRIMINALLY ASSAULTED IN AUTOMOBILES BY DEGENERATE BRUTES.

THE LATEST IS THAT OF MARY DEZIKI—AFTER ATTENDING A CHURCH SOCIAL SHE WAS ABDUCTED BY SIX MEN—BRUTALLY BEATEN.

DRAWN TO LONELY WOODS ON LONG TRIP—ROBBERY ATTACKED.

ANOTHER RECENT CASE—GIRL RECEIVED SAME TREATMENT—AFTERWARDS FLUNG INTO A HALLWAY—TOWN BY TENANTS OF BUILDING.

IN CHICAGO FEW DAYS AGO—BEAUTIFUL YOUNG GIRL ATTACKED AND BEATEN—FINALLY DIED—SHE HAD HER FIANCE ON HER DEATH BED.

Any girl who accepts a ride with strangers in an automobile is running the risk of worse than death. Even if the girl does NOT accept an invitation, often she is flung into a car, her screams stifled and the car driven off. Another brutal and heinous little girl is found where she has been thrown by the roadside. If men do so quickly, and automobile move so fast, the police are usually powerless to catch the brutes who make a practice of that sort of thing. If our lawmakers would wake up and put such brutal attacks on a par with murder and stipulate the ELECTRIC CHAIR as punishment, there might be less of the terrible thing that is often WORSE than murder for the girl victim.

HAL COFFMAN.

HOTEL ROOM IS DENIED BOOTLEGGERS
New York, Dec. 5.—Every case has a down, and trouble soon comes into a bootlegger's life.

It wasn't so long ago that Edward Downham, "king of the bootleggers," had more friends than a Police girl and used to tug his money to the banks in his discarded Scotch cases. Then his foot slipped and the matrimonial altar of Algonquin Federal Prison for a two-year sentence. But that wasn't the worst.

He was brought to New York to see another charge, and confidently asked permission to live in a hotel instead of a jail pending trial.

"No," said Judge Garvin. "It's a tough world."

LONDON TO ASK ABOUT FRENCH DEBT TO U. S.

London, Dec. 5 (A.P.)—The British government, it was stated in official quarters today, is expected to address a note to the American and French governments, asking whether they have taken or are anticipated in settling the French war debt to the United States.

While it is admitted the United States is under no obligation to amend the British terms in any case, there is a strong possibility that, if France is accorded better treatment, Great Britain will be similarly treated.

There is also a growing impression that if France should pay the United States, she must also pay Great Britain.

A Washington dispatch yesterday said officials appeared to regard an unqualified approval of the French position in London regarding the debt as a matter of course.

Such is life and glory among stars. It isn't so much better among men. Men will not let worms eat up, and take too long about it.

YOU READ President Coolidge's message, of course, and are aware that he has reversed the Woolsey-Wilson theory. President Coolidge does not believe that the United States needs the guidance of foreign countries or should be made responsible for the troubles of foreign countries.

The President does not think it necessary to ask permission of Japan or of any other country if we want to send our boats cruising in the Pacific Ocean. He doesn't claim that the Pacific Ocean is an American lake, but he doesn't admit that it is an Asian lake either.

THE AVERAGE American citizen talking to President Coolidge yesterday would have got the impression that there is a man at the head of this government with considerable respect for the American people and for the ability of the United States to take care of itself.

exhibition. That interests him. He says it shows what the farmers are going, as the light in the electric bulb in the Drake Hotel shows the hard work that men are doing in a big power plant far away.

President Coolidge knows the life of the farmer. He had seen his own father, wading out through bargains and mud in the morning, long before sunrise, in the New England winter cold, wind, rain and snow, to look after the stock.

Farmers that helped to elect him can rely on it that he will be useful to them if he can find a way to do it.

THE PRESIDENT saw a good deal of Chicago, wonderful city, on his way to the stock yards from the North Side, where money lives, all along Michigan avenue, out through the regions where hard work lives. All the streets were lined with people cheering him. Some time, for blocks at a time, the sidewalks were covered with colored men and women, who cheered and President Coolidge's smile was the same for all the different crowds.

AT THE livestock show the President made the acquaintance of the grand champion steer for 1924.

The grand champion, up to his knees in straw, was a wonderful 17 and a half feet long, 11 feet high. He was born on the third of last January, and will be knocked on the head and eaten before the first of next January. He has been sold at $140 a pound.

Only an 11-month-old baby, he weighs over 900 pounds and comes from Editor Shaffers' 1500-acre "Ken Carl Ranch" in Colorado. The father of the grand champion is Deane Bonzo. His mother's name is "Miss Perfection 123." Big as he is, the 900-pound baby will still be a nursing cow with him. She is a grade Holstein, giving a prodigious quantity of milk and lives in an obscure stall off a corner. That's the fate of mothers and nurses.

THIS BOOKADILEAC HOTEL, in Detroit, that bought the grand champion, bought his nursing cow also. She will go to Michigan with him, where he will be with him more. Then he will leave the nursing cow and appear in small pieces in the Book-Adileac dining-room.

Such is life and glory among stars. It isn't so much better among men. Men will not let worms eat up, and take too long about it.

SMITH SUICIDE AMAZES HUB ARMY MEN

Lieutenant-Colonel Must Have Been Insane, Says Gen. Edwards

Army officers in Boston were amazed at the news of the suicide of Lieutenant-Colonel Emory T. Smith, of Boston, who was found dead in his quarters at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Smith, who committed suicide by hanging, was married and was the father of three children. He was the son-in-law of Major General H. P. MacArthur, retired, Adjutant General during the world war. According to friends in this city, Lt. Col. Smith had no reason apparently for committing suicide.

Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, when informed of Smith's death, declared: "I am shocked and cannot believe the news. He was the best man in the world in my mind to do such a thing. His life was one of the finest men and soldiers in my division. He was devoted to his family and his profession. He must have gone mad."

FAMILY IN WASHINGTON. Mrs. Smith and her three children live here with her father, in Washington, D. C. Her father is General MacArthur.

Colonel Smith came to Boston on July 25, 1921, from the General service schools at Fort Leavenworth at the direct request of General Edwards, who was then commanding the First Corps Area. He was placed in charge of the Eleventh Army Corps as chief of staff. This assignment brought him in direct touch with some 5,000 reserve officers in New England who were members of the Eleventh Army Corps. He made his residence while here on duty at No. 44 Belmont street, Brookline.

53 RAILROADS FIGHT CUT IN EXPRESS RATES

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 5 (A.P.)—Fifty-three railroads launched a fight against a reduction in express rates authorized under an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission May 17 to become effective January 1 in a suit filed in United States District Court here against the federal government and the American Railway Express Company.

Virtually all the railroads comprising the Western, Mountain, Pacific and Southern route groups, which were segregated by a ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission July 9, 1923, under authority of the so-called Interstate Commerce act, are plaintiffs in the action.

Boston Merchant Protests Against Rate Increase as Not Justified

CAPTURE TWO AS ROBBERS AFTER CHASE

After a chase through the South End, Police Inspectors Twomey and Clennon and a squad of officers from the East Dedham street station today captured two men behind a building on Onoda street.

The men are charged with robbing William Swartz, of Winton street, Chelsea, of $1,600 after they had blackjacked him in his store. Swartz is on the danger list at the First Hospital, Chelsea.

The prisoners captured gave their names as Walter Gladden, 22, of Anderson street, West End, and Ed ward Robinson, 22, of Rose street, South End.

When Swartz opened his store two men walked in and crashed in his wall with some blunt instrument. They took $1,600 from him and left him lying on the floor.

The Chelsea police followed to a store in Boston, where the men had bought $200 worth of clothing. The trail then led to Rose street. The Chelsea police called on the Boston police for aid and the party of officers went to a Rose street house. The two men fled, but in the rear as an Onoda street building were cornered. They battled desperately, but were soon overcome. The police said they had a large amount of money in their pockets when captured.

After the men had been taken to the station house, Louis Kellam, a 19-year-old storekeeper of No. 24 Onoda street, arrested and identified the pair as those who entered the store today and held him up while they stole $7 from his pocket.

It from the cash drawer and a quantity of papers and checks and two rings.

A third man is being sought in connection with the two holdups.

ZIEGFELD MAY BE PUT IN SHADE

Who appear in one of the numbers of the water colored at Boston University tonight, wedded under the direction of Miss Audrey Ware.

BEVY OF GIRLS IN SENIOR CABARET

Boston University College of Practical Arts and Letters promises to put Mr. Ziegfeld in the shade with its Senior Cabaret tonight.

Since after the midnight hour has passed, the "gay night life" will merely proceed to the anticipated strains of a musical orchestra, the senior cabaret of well-known songs, and the soft patter of exquisitely dainty toes.

All of which is largely due to Miss Audrey Ware, herself a charming singer of a girl and a senior. For Miss Ware selected the specialty acts, coached the chorus of six girls, and invested many of the unique songs. She will appear to a number of her own, an impersonation of Elizabeth Hines.

Such another star of the evening will be Miss Florie Wilson. For three years she has studied the art of dancing under Madame Maschietti, a Russian and has appeared in semi-professional roles. Miss Wilson will lead the dance number.

A sorted dance, possessing all the attributes of an old-fashioned valentine, will be led by the Misses Ethel Warren and Marion Kern, and every body knows how to dance. The dance is expected to show a fair upon the completion.

An Astor dance, with just enough spice of the rhapsody and just enough wickedness to be interesting, is another feature. Add to this a Spanish dance, a "Tango" number, several surprise features, and last but not least, seven surprising costumes and it is no wonder that all Boston University ones are turned to "PAL."

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, Jr., D. M. D.

THE mental health of your children should be one of your first and most constant considerations. Your responsibility as a parent in this regard begins at the baby's cradle and ends only at your own grave. I have had occasion to discuss the earlier impressions which it becomes your duty to register upon the infant mind.

The importance of establishing the habits of mind which will govern the child's future life is often overlooked. When babies of thought are established, it is in the infancy of nature at birth, and presented they tend to the direction of accurate knowledge and correct behavior.

It is, therefore, of the highest importance that the expanding infant shall be fed, not only with accurate knowledge which will not only lead to the most pleasing of families.

It is for this reason that the teaching by means of fairy stories and pure fiction, which is so much in vogue, is so much disapproved by the scientific educator.

The teaching thus imparted tends to develop the child's imagination along the line of irrational superstition.

It tends to feed the imagination with vague fancies that are more or later to be learned.

The unlearning process in childhood is both difficult and dangerous. When something that has been taught as true is found to be untrue, the child becomes doubtful of the veracity of the teacher and the reliability of alleged knowledge.

If, however, the parent is without sufficient knowledge of the attractive things of actual life, of actual nature, to utilize them for conveying attractive and interesting lessons, resources may be had in the "fairy tales" of the imagination.

It is in this case that it can be done safely only by having it made by the parent, and the child is just "trained" people. With this precaution the child's mind may be largely mitigated.

The excess very often given for utilizing fables as the means of entertainment or of mental development is that the imagination is thus stimulated.

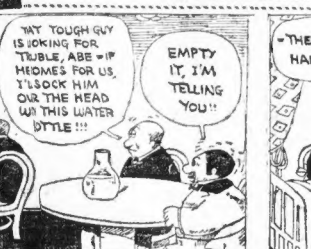

A few of the fathers have tried that by means of these creations of their own fancies they can to the extent of creating a world for their children. This is at best a doubtful experiment, the success of which entirely depends upon the idealism of the parent.

Imagination is one of the most potent faculties of the mind. It is an imagination to be either a blessing or a curse. It is a faculty that can be used for good or evil. It can be used to create a world of beauty and joy, or it can be used to create a world of pain and suffering. It is the parent's duty to guide the child's imagination in the right direction.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

WILLIAM HARVEY'S blood vessel when he came face to face with the fact that at last he had hit on a momentous discovery. After years of experimentation of study and research in library and laboratory he had discovered the secret of the circulation of the blood.

The function and action of the blood had always been the subject of much speculation. For many years it was thought that the arteries were vessels that carried air. This air was supposed to be the spirit or breath of the body, the real source of life. This belief was held for some time without anyone attempting to prove it.

It was really so. Finally a great physician of Rome, named Galen, moved an artery in a living animal and found it full of blood, thereby disproving this time-honored theory.

For a long time physicians judged the health of a patient by his pulse without knowing that the pulse was affected by the action of the heart. Add to this the fact that some one had discovered that the veins have valves that keep the blood flowing always in one direction, and we have the sum substance of all the knowledge on the very important subject until the last discovery of the circulation of the blood.

What was the driving force behind the blood—that caused it to move at all and not merely to stay in place? Nobody knew, until William Harvey advanced the theory that the heart was the central organ which propelled the blood through the body.

Harvey was born in Folkestone, England, in 1578, the son of a well-to-do family. It was early decided that William was to study medicine, and when there were no really good schools of medicine then in existence he was sent to study in Italy.

Harvey's return to England he rapidly rose from one important position in his profession to another, and finally was made physician to King Charles I. In 1616 Harvey began to lecture at Cambridge on the movement of the heart and blood. Several years later he published a treatise on the subject in which he set forth his theory of the circulation of the blood.

Harvey's theory was revolutionary. It was a complete departure from the old ideas of Galen. It was a theory that was based on facts and not on tradition. It was a theory that was based on the study of the human body and not on the study of the ancient Greeks.

Harvey's theory was a great discovery. It was a discovery that changed the course of medicine. It was a discovery that was based on facts and not on tradition. It was a discovery that was based on the study of the human body and not on the study of the ancient Greeks.

3 MINUTE JOURNEYS

By Temple Manning

TO the casual visitor, the life of the Japanese people seems almost one of a different world. In every month the various temples arrange special programs with special features for the children. Fascinating toys and trinkets are given to the children in arms, while the other girls and boys amuse themselves with playing all sorts of games.

Religion in Japan is divided into two main sects of the same name, Shinto and Buddhism. Shinto is the native religion, and Buddhism is the foreign religion. Shinto is a religion of nature, and Buddhism is a religion of the soul.

Shinto is a religion of nature. It is a religion that believes in the power of nature. It is a religion that believes in the power of the sun, the moon, and the stars. It is a religion that believes in the power of the wind, the rain, and the snow.

Buddhism is a religion of the soul. It is a religion that believes in the power of the mind. It is a religion that believes in the power of the heart, the will, and the soul. It is a religion that believes in the power of the body, the mind, and the soul.

Shinto and Buddhism are the two main religions of Japan. They are religions that have shaped the life of the Japanese people. They are religions that have given the Japanese people a sense of purpose and a sense of direction.

REEL I

A BOARD the ocean liner De la Malle, Dr. Price, president of the Consolidated Atmospheric Company, which supplies America with air, is returning from Paris with his pretty daughter, Zetta. They want the airships to take the youngsters home, you naturally. Zetta drops a glove. Will Wynne, a young immigrant, a "Keweenaw" native, return it. Zetta, a little snobbish, flings it overboard in disgust. Will, gazing at the beautiful lost, vows manfully: "There's the girl I'm going to marry."

Price notices the boy is reading a book entitled "A Million Ways to Make a Million in America." Remembering his own humble beginnings, he offers Will a job in his airship factory at Keweenaw, N. J.

REEL II

Will, now at work for the Price airship factory, comes outside for a breath of air. Zetta, waiting to see him, smiles. Will when the doctor's hat, politely, Price leaves his office with a dark young man whom he introduces to Zetta.

REEL III

Tricky's scheme to double profits is simple. It is to double the price of air. The people protest, but Tricky laughs contemptuously and ignores them. The people rise, and Tricky, dressed in an indignation meeting in front of Price's factory, Zetta, hearing of this, runs right home and tells her father, who frowns Will.

REEL IV

Will, now leader of the people, advises them to refuse to pay their air bills. Price is for giving in and so is Zetta. But Tricky insists that the air supply be shut off "to bring the mob to their senses."

REEL V

REVOLUTION! A group of a million enraged men and women march on Tricky's factory. Tricky has taken refuge in the Price house, where there is a private stock of oxygen. The mob, surrounding the house, demands that Tricky be turned over to them.

REEL VI

Price, in appreciation, gives his daughter in marriage to the people and Zetta to Will. Since it no longer counts anything, everything, including the audience, becomes a sign of it.

High-Hatted Haters

In Five Reels

Tricky, the hand over Tricky, the latter throws Price and Zetta out of a window. This turns Zetta against her father. Will, to save the girl from starvation, shows her back into the air-filled house. There he marches up a battalion of political campaign speakers. They turn loose such a flood of hot air that the people now almost exhausted, are saved.

Price, in appreciation, gives his daughter in marriage to the people and Zetta to Will. Since it no longer counts anything, everything, including the audience, becomes a sign of it.
